

Are you operating a private paging system? We can help you.

The Critical Messaging Association (CMA) is a collaboration of paging system providers, vendors and consultants that:

Provide a forum to exchange ideas, technology, and learn best practices;

- Organized meetings with industry professionals including system operators, system designers and manufacturers
- Innovative solutions and new ideas from invited guests and speakers
- Networking with experts on all aspects of the critical messaging industry, including messaging devices, networks and related infrastructure, and system management
- Problem solving from our Paging Technical Committee

Advocate for legal and regulatory policies;

- Legal advice on industry issues
- Representation at the FCC to monitor their activities and keep members informed

Provide protocol for installation and maintenance;

- RF design and optimization knowledge
- Paging infrastructure design, installation and maintenance
- Pager functionality for your specific use including group call management
- Pager repair and replacement advice

Prepare for the future;

- Encryption for paging and other text messaging
- Secure and other messaging applications (paging, cell phone, etc.)